Now check the meanings in the sentences:

1. Woman: Tell me you got good news.

Jessica: I do. Stable Shelters' bridge loan has just been approved. Harvey pulled some strings at the bank.

2. Jessica: Financial crime is that man's forte. Yes, he overstepped his rank, but I'm not about to throw the baby out with the bathwater.

Harvey: Louis is the bathwater.

3. Louis: I mean, I think our relationship needs a little work.

Harvey: Let's hold off the couples counseling until our fifth anniversary.

4. Woman: Threaten all you want. Okay? There's no way that my father's gonna let this go public right before his IPO. I'm not giving the money back. I'm giving it away.

5. Rachel: In terms of living relatives, I didn't find anything, but when I looked into the estates of relatives who passed away, the holding was originally in the name of the aunt.

6. Mike: So I organized this so that you two could clear the air, and it seems we've gotten off the wrong foot...

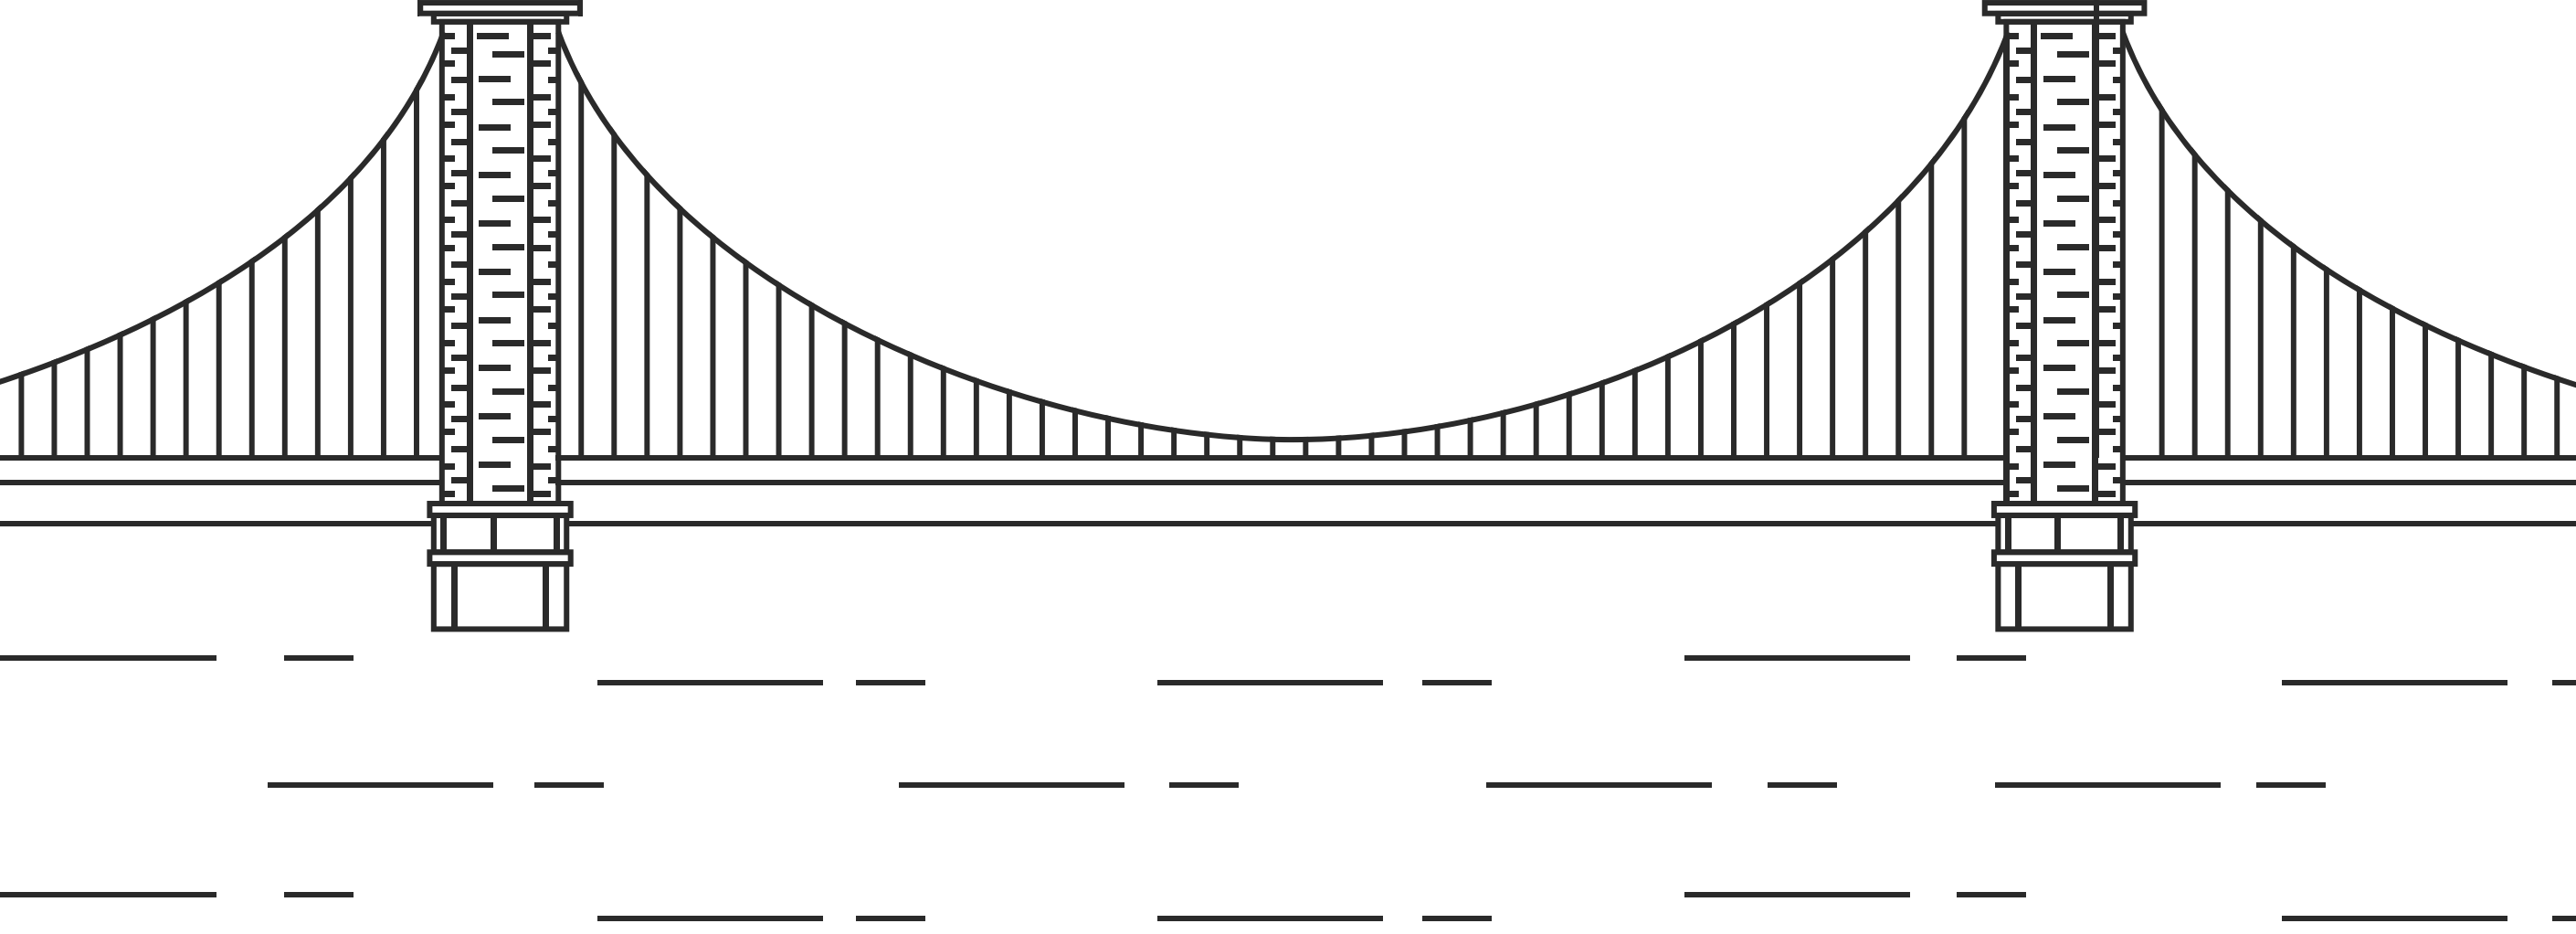

Woman: You know what? It's the same story as always, dad. You duck your responsibilities.

7. Mike: Harvey, when the police show up at Lola's doorstep, we're done.

Harvey: Has she distributed the money yet?

8. Louis: What were you just doing in there? Let me guess. You were cutting me out. [...] The little impromptu meeting you just had with Jessica and Lucille that you conveniently left me out of.

Harvey: I didn't leave you out of anything.
